WINKIE'S STORY

Carrier pigeon, Winkie, received the first PDSA Dickin Medal from Maria Dickin on 2 December 1943 for the heroic role she played in saving the lives of a downed air crew.

The four-man crew's Beaufort Bomber ditched in the sea more than 100 miles from base after coming under enemy fire during a mission over Norway. Unable to radio the plane's position, they released Winkie and despite horrendous weather and being covered in oil, she made it home to raise the alarm.

Home for Winkie was more than 120 miles from the downed aircraft. Her owner, George Ross, discovered her and contacted RAF Leuchars in Fife to raise the alarm.

Although it had no accurate position for the downed crew, the RAF managed to calculate its position, using the time between the plane crashing and Winkie's return, the wind direction and likely effect of the oil on her flight speed. They launched a rescue operation within 15 minutes of her return home.

Following the successful rescue, the crew held a celebration dinner in honour of Winkie's achievement and she reportedly 'basked in her cage' as she was toasted by the officers. Winkie received her PDSA Dickin Medal a year later. The citation read: "For delivering a message under exceptionally difficult conditions and so contributing to the rescue of an aircrew while serving with the RAF in February 1942."

Following her death, her PDSA Dickin Medal was donated to Dundee Art Galleries and Museums by her owner.

THE PDSA DICKIN MEDAL

The close relationship between humans and animals is rarely more profound than in times of conflict. Throughout history, animals have stood alongside humans in action and shown incredible bravery and devotion to duty when confronted with the horrors of war.

Our founder, Maria Dickin, CBE, introduced the PDSA Dickin Medal on 2 December 1943, at the height of World War II.

A tireless campaigner for animal welfare, Maria Dickin was determined to raise the status of animals in society and improve their care. The Medal was instituted to recognise outstanding acts of gallantry and devotion to duty displayed by animals serving with the Armed Forces or Civil Defence units in any theatre of war, throughout the world.

Regarded worldwide as the animals' Victoria Cross, the PDSA Dickin Medal is as inspirational and relevant today as it was 75 years ago. It is a fitting tribute to the gallant animals 'who also served' and whose remarkable contributions helped save countless lives.

The highest honour any animal can receive, the Medal stands as testament to the Diligent, Resolute, Fearless, and Relentless qualities shown by animals in action.
